PREFACE

Present document provides report of the Election Administration of Georgia on its activities carried out during the period of 2012 Elections of the Parliament of Georgia.

Election Administration started a preparation work for the Parliamentary Elections of 2012 immediately after finishing the Self-Government Elections of 2010. The Report of the Office for Democratic Institutions and Human Rights (OSCE/ODIHR) on Municipal Elections in Georgia held on 30 May, 2010, as well as the Analysis of the Election Processes provided by the Election Administration served as a guideline for this processes. Based on it, the Election Administration made a decision to develop a long-term strategy and to act consistently.

Low public confidence towards the election process was considered as main challenge for the Election Administration. It was impossible to overcome the problem immediately. However after consistent activities the significant progress was planned to be achieved. Evaluation of the Election Administration's activity by the authoritative, independent, international observation organizations, as well as the data of public opinion research was considered as main criteria for evaluation.

According to the joint statement of the Parliamentary Assembly of Council of Europe, as well as the OSCE/PA, the OSCE/ODIHR, the representatives of Parliamentary Assemblies of the European Parliament and NATO, "The election administration enjoyed a high level of confidence and managed the preparations for the elections in a professional manner. The Central Election Commission (CEC) operated efficiently and transparently, holding frequent meetings that were open to observers, party representatives and media....".

During the election period of the Georgian Parliamentary Elections of 2012, the Election Administration's was carried out in accordance with 2011-2015 strategic plan as well as the action plan of the current year.

In 2012 the Election Administration's activity was divided into 4 parts:

- Pre-election period (January 1 – July 31);
- Election period until the Election (polling) day (August 1 – September 30);
- Election (polling) day (October 1);
- Period after Election (polling) day until the sum up of its final results (October 2 – October 20)

Pre-Election Period

Management Improvement - Reorganization, Technological Innovations

According to the strategy, as well as the action plan, the introduction of effective system of management started in 2012.

In the beginning of 2012 reorganization was held at the Central Election Commission in compliance with the strategic plan 2011-2015, as well as the action plan of the year. , .. The Ordinance #409/2010 of August 10, 2010 on approval of CEC staff was revoked by the Ordinance #15/2012 of February 3, 2012 and a new CEC staff was approved.

Under the reorganization the number of employees decreased to 72. The process aimed at transition of the Central Election Commission's activity to projects management principles; for the management of the current routine processes, the administrative department was created.

At the same time started the gradual implementation of large-scale project on E-management of Election Process in District Election Commissions

This work aimed at creating of software on the basis of Election Administration information technology structure. On the one hand this software had to provide better implementation of the election district activities and on the other hand to enable the Central Election Commission to observe all the processes in districts election commissions and to make prompt reaction in the case of necessity. The following modules were created on the first stage: “election calendar”, “complaints registry”, “human resources management”, “Election results” and “information page”. At the same time the structure of relevant database was defined and the real data were put in the database.

Capability Development – Modernization, Trainings

During the pre-election period, according to the amendments to the Election Code all the district election commissions located in various administrative buildings were moved to other buildings. Finally, in 2012 almost all regional district election commissions’ buildings were repaired and technically equipped; the working conditions were improved. Computer network of the election administration was reorganized and the district election commissions were connected to the on-line regime expanding the common computer network. For this purpose the following work was done:

- The equipment of network management (Cisco, Routers, Firewalls, Switches) was installed in the Central Election Commission’s servers room. The equipment was configured; the fully changed network was marked and tested and all the problems were solved; thus, smooth running of the network was ensured.
- Topology of the unified computer network of the election administration was planned together with the representatives of “Caucasus Online”, the internet-provider. The relevant equipment was installed in the buildings of the Central Election Commission and the configuration of this equipment was provided based on the above-mentioned topology. Allocation of separated sub-networks for servers and consumers was started. The Central Election Commission’s network devices were connected to monitoring regime and the district election commissions which had been already connected to this regime were added gradually.

The process of virtualization defined and started under the working plan of the last year project was continued: one physical server was added to 12 virtual machines already operated on three physical servers and four new virtual machines were installed on this server. One of these machines was used for the provision of reservation of election process management e-system. It was also used for reservation of the bases of the web-sites introducing the election results. The other machine was used for ensuring access to the building e-system. The third machine provided smooth operation of typing devices; and the fourth machine was used for changing of malfunctioning domain controller if required.

The required software, as well as the licensed antivirus programs were installed on each virtual machines and servers and the relevant services were provided.

During the election year the main attention was paid to the human resources development. The employees of different levels of the election administration attended the training courses to improve their professional technical and management skills. Mainly:

The members of the Central Election Commission attended the training courses as follows –

- Project management;
- Principles of the Management;
- Facilitation of the process and time management.

The Heads of CEC Department and Divisions attended the training courses as follows –

- Project management;
- Basics of Management;
- Negotiation skills.

The training was provided from April 4, 2012 to June 30, 2012 by the trainers of “Management Academy”, with the financial support of the Netherland Institute for Multiparty Democracy (NIMD) and the Dutch Embassy.

With the financial support of the International Foundation of Election Systems (IFES) and the United States Agency for International Development (USAID), the CEC members and the heads of department, attended the training courses as follows:

- Conflict management;
- organizational teamwork;
- Basics of media relations.

With the support of the same institutions the training courses on development of resources in the sphere of democracy, management and elections (BRIDGE) were provided for 365 members of 73 District Election Commissions.

Within the framework of the UNDP project on “Development of Reliable and Sustainable Electoral Institutes and Processes” the Center for Electoral Systems Development, Reforms and Training has elaborated the special training course for the members of District and Precinct Election Commissions. Based on these training courses the following training material was prepared:

E-learning Program	Content
For the District Election Commission members	The program provides the election administration officials’ maximum awareness towards the electoral legislation by using the visual and schematic effects in electronic format. E-learning is based on intensive use of interactive method to examine the engagement of participants into the training, as well as the perception of the provided information. This method is very effective from the point of view of achieving the results during the training (at the completion of each training module the studied issues are tested by questioning. Only if the answer is correct moving to the next module is available).

Rebranding of Election Administration

In order to enhance confidence to the electoral process, according to the strategy and action plan, the election administration took a decision of rebranding and changing image, on the basis of which the following was carried out:

- Development of a new logo for the election administration and for the Parliamentary elections 2012;
- Update of CEC web-page;
- Preparation of motivational / image / informational TV and Radio clips;
- Informational / image advertisements in the print media;
- Outdoor advertising throughout Georgia;
- Different types of branded products (information booklets, pens, notebooks, mugs, etc.);
- Advertisement in internet Space

In order to select performers of this work, meetings were held with the following advertising agencies - Formula Creative, Night Show Studio and Metro. After the negotiations the administration selected the project of Formula Creative. As a result of the joint work it was determined that the company will also prepare a full-length educational film about voting day procedures and clips related to election procedures, vote secrecy (prepared in cooperation with UNDP), use of image and administrative resources, transparency and mutual trust.

On the basis of advertising campaign concept presented by Formula Creative, the slogans were created: “We reflect reality”, “Transparency brings trust”, “Respect of the law brings trust”, and “Mutual respect brings trust”.

The plan was developed for the radio advertisements with themes similar to TV clips. The project for development of newspaper informational advertising design was determined.

Signboards of CEC, the District and Precinct Election Commissions with new logo and corporate colors were prepared, branded inventory and brand T-shirts were prepared for the members of CEC and the District Election Commissions and brand cloaks for the Precinct Election Commissions for the polling day.

Current legal, Organizational and Administrative issues

Lists of Voters

The election administration processed the database submitted by the Commission for Ensuring Voters List Accuracy on August 1 and 12, 2012.

CEC along with the district election commissions processed new and problematic addresses, adjusted boundaries of polling stations and included them in the database. After the mentioned process, the commission distributed voters to the polling stations according to the address net. Commission for Ensuring Voters List Accuracy added relevant notes to the voters in the unified voters' list and eventually formed the list.

Desk and wall list versions were prepared, the lists were transferred to the relevant format and passed for printing. Voting invitation cards were transferred to the relevant format for all 73 election districts and passed for printing.

Lists of voters were updated on the CEC official website.

In relevant districts and precincts bilingual lists of voters (Georgian-Azeri and Georgian-Armenian) were prepared for national minorities and passed to the printing offices.

For identification of voters in districts and precincts, a computer search program was created for operational systems Windows and Android. The program was installed in portable and clipboard computers (about 2,000 units) and distributed in the election districts to be passed to the precincts.

Verification of data was available for Armenian and Azeri voters in their own language at the general list of voters on CEC website (Georgian-Armenian, Georgian-Azeri).

Voter Information Campaign

1. Gradual activation of information products created in advance by the election administration.

Placement of image / informational / promotional clips (in total 8 clips) in the central and regional TV channels was launched from August. Each ad was translated into languages of ethnic minorities (Armenian and Azeri) along with sign language translation.

Audio ads with the similar themes were broadcasted by central and regional radio stations.

The educational film on voting day procedures was broadcasted by Channel II of Public broadcaster (the film was translated in Russian and English languages in collaboration with IFES); The film was shown by regional TVs, and on the voting day by public broadcaster; it was used in different trainings for representatives of the election administration as well as for the stakeholders.

Advertising banners were placed on popular Georgian websites (www.myvideo.ge, www.ipn.ge, www.ambebi.ge, www.news.ge, etc.)

6 image / informational newspaper ads were prepared, which were placed in the newspapers: "24 Hours", "Akhali Taoba", "Rezonansi", "Kviris Palitra", "Version". The ads were also printed in the regional print media.

CEC website structure and design were updated, which made it easier for the users to find the information on the website.

The news about the activities of the Commission was promptly uploaded on the Commission's website (Georgian and English versions) and was at the same time sent to the stakeholders.

Outdoor advertising banners were placed in Tbilisi and regions of Georgia, which also helped to raise the motivation of voters.

By initiative of CEC the project “Georgian TV Election News Digest” created by company ITDC was placed on one of the most popular video-portals www.myvideo.ge. The project was launched on August 15 and functioned until September 30. All important news broadcasted by Georgian leading TVs was collected. The material was translated into English and Russian languages; and all Georgian (in the format of video files) as well as English and Russian materials were placed on specially created internet links. In close cooperation with the Public Broadcaster information digest was translated into languages of ethnic minorities (Armenian, Azeri); The material was transmitted on Public Broadcaster’s “Natsionaluri Moambe”, Channel II information blocks and the following regional TVs: TV company “Channel 9” (Akhaltsikhe), ATV 12 (Akhalkalaki), “Parvana” (Ninotsminda), “Marneuli TV” (Marneuli) “Bolneli” (Bolnisi). The project target audience was English and Russian-speaking Internet users, ethnic minorities, international organizations, embassies and international media means..

Debates among the election subjects , broadcasted on Public Broadcaster were translated into Armenian and Azeri languages.

Different types of branded products were produced - information booklets, CEC pre-election calendar, pens, notebooks, mugs, etc., which also helped to increase awareness of the election administration’s new image.

2. Preparation of visual materials with informational content for voters.

In order to support full implementation of the voters’ suffrage, under the aegis of CEC and with financial support of UNDP the Training Center developed informational illustrated booklets and posters reflecting voting procedures set by the election legislation.

- A voter’s memo;
- A memo for imprisoned voters;
- A poster "Polling steps for voters" (for publicity was placed at the polling stations).

3. Informational event for students

Election Day

Voting process

On October 1, 2012, all polling stations opened at 8 am and the voting process began.

The Central Election Commission was carrying out monitoring of uploading process of applications/complaints received at the District Election Commissions using the Districts Management Program.

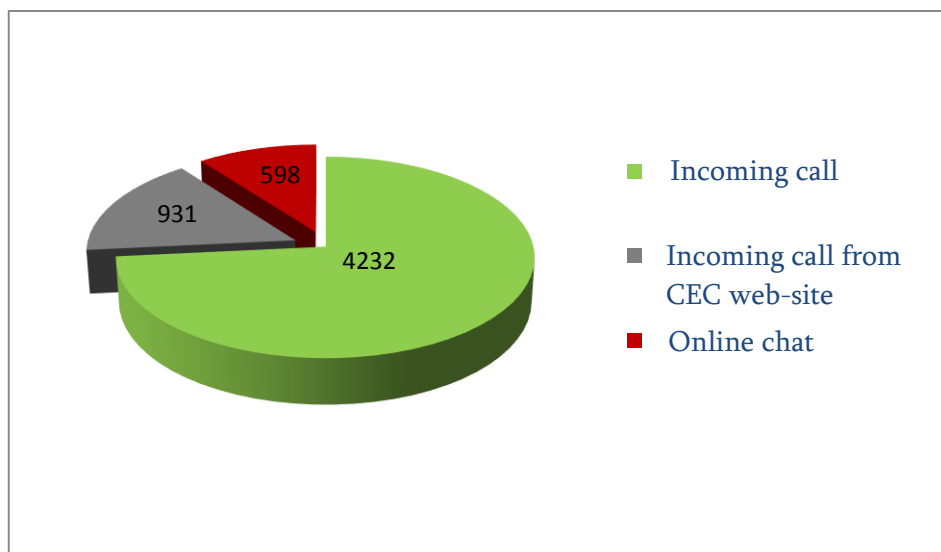

Information about violations occurred in the polling stations were collected from district election commissions during a day.

Overall voting process was conducted without serious violations. All observers had the opportunity to register the violation and make a written complaint. During the next days of polling, all complaints were examined in accordance to the requirements prescribed by law.

Informing the public

Media-center was organized in the building of the Central Election Commission for the purpose to inform the public which was operating 24 hours a day. All authorized persons with the right and desire to stay in CEC were assembled in the briefing room. Once every two hours from 9:00 am information briefings were held; the CEC was informing the public about activeness of voters (at 10, 12, 15, 17, 20 pm) as well as about election process. All kinds of violations received in the commission were timely reacted, which was also promptly reported by the commission. System of sending-receiving information from polling stations about activeness of voters by SMS worked with full load. First information was received at 8 am and it was about opening the polling station, after that information about activeness of voters was received 5 times during a day (at 10, 12, 15, 17, 20 pm). This information was entered in the electronic system database of the election process management in District Election Commissions, as well as summarized and uploaded on the Central Election Commission web-site.

Hotline, online chat and online operator of CEC were working 24 hours a day. Number of incoming calls was 4,232, out of which 931 calls were received from CEC web-site but 598 citizens used online chat service.

After closing the polling stations ambassadors accredited in Georgia and international observers visited the CEC to attend and observe the process of receiving the protocols;

Election administration representatives of foreign countries also visited the CEC, who arrived in Georgia with the status of international observer.

International community positively evaluated the operation of the election administration, which was also underlined in the comments made with media.

Announcement of preliminary results

After the voting process, only after a few hours the Central Election Commission started uploading of each final protocol of the special web-site <http://results.cec.gov.ge/>, which was available to all stakeholders. Accordingly, everyone had the opportunity to observe the process of calculation of results using a special program. Despite a DoS attack on the CEC's server, the CEC continued uninterrupted data uploading to the web-site.

On polling day, uploading process of final protocols to the electronic system of the election process management in District Election Commissions started from 10 pm. Process of printing out the protocols had also started - one copy was posted up in the briefing room, and the other copies were distributed to operators in order to enter into the computer.

In 3-4 minutes after the first announcement of voting results the results web-site started operation with full load. Tens of thousands of users applied to the web-site at the election night and in further period. Preliminary results of Parliamentary Elections of Georgia were presented to the public on October 2, 2012.

The elections passed without incidents at the polling stations created outside of the country as well. The commission summarized results of the Elections of Parliament of Georgia dated October 1, 2012 at the polling stations created in abroad on October 6, 2012 and informed the public about the results on October 7, 2012.

It should be noted that the voting in the military units deployed in Afghanistan, participating in the ISAF-'s (International Security Assistance Force) mission was held on September 24, 2012. Georgian soldiers took part in the proportional elections. Two polling stations were opened in Helmand Province - on the "B Company Base" and "on "Shukvani." The Central Election Commission in Afghanistan published results of elections held in Afghanistan together with general results, the population was timely informed about it by the media.

Each journalist and interested parties had the opportunity to observe the calculation process of the results. It should be noted that each final protocol together with uploading to the web-site, was shown on screens placed in the media-center

Activity After Elections

Notwithstanding that the election administration activity was already positively evaluated on October 2, 2012 by the International community and the effective and transparent operation of the commission was outlined, the election administration was put under pressure on the second morning after elections. Throughout the country, in the districts where the United National Movement candidates won according to the preliminary results, protests were held. The election block "Bidzina Ivanishvili - Georgian Dream" activists were demanding the abolition of the results of polling stations, where the candidate of "United National Movement - more benefits to people" was winning according to preliminary data. The CEC has made a number of steps in order to stop the administration of aggression and interference in the election commissions. There are many facts of attempts of intimidation and suppression towards commission members.

The Central Election Commission in a timely manner delivered their own information as well as information received from media in connection with to all interested parties. According to the information the facts of the pressure were observed in Tetritskaro, Terjola, Signagi, Zugdidi, Khashuri, Ninotsminda, Gardabani, Dedoplistskharo, Kvareli, Martvili, Khoni and Ambrolauri election districts.

The CEC had a close cooperation with the International community and the diplomatic corps accredited in Georgia to neutralize the tension. This played a significant role and escalation of the situation came to a halt. The right and rapid spread of messages from the international community calmed the situation and as a result the election administration was allowed to continue their usual daily activities after October 6, 2012.

On October 3, the Central Election Commission held a meeting, which was attended by ambassadors and representatives of international organizations accredited in Georgia. They were able to learn some of the details of the tense situation in several district election commissions, including facts of intimidation and suppression and make relevant conclusions. After the meeting, several of them made important estimations, which substantially helped to ease the existing situation in district election commissions.

It should be noted that by-election of the Elections of Parliament of Georgia was held in 11 polling stations on October 14, 2012 by a majority system of election. Polling stations were open at 8 am in accordance with the requirements prescribed by laws and the voting process was completed at 20:00 pm. Citizens and all stakeholders were receiving complete information about the election process and voter activeness timely.

It should be mentioned that after the Parliamentary Elections, October 1, 2012 results of the elections were annulled:

- by proportional system – at 14 election precincts of 8 election districts (total of 17.656 voters)
- by majoritarian system - 16 election precincts of 6 Districts (total of 15.623 voters)
- information was gathered from District Election Commissions regarding the representatives of election subjects appointed in Precinct Election Commissions on polling day.

As a result, by-elections through majoritarian electoral system was held in № 13 Signagi № 5, № 32 Gori № 4 and № 35 Khashuri № 1, № 2, № 3, № 8, № 9, № 10, № 13, № 45, № 46 election districts (Total of 12.856 voters)

Results

Finally from 3,613,851 voters 2,215,661 voters participated in the elections, that is 61.31% of total number of the voters.
